How Life Should Be Lived

By MAURICE MAETERLINCK.

The Present Church

We should live as though we were always on the eve of the Great Revealways on the eve of the Melos on the totality of life, to absolve or condemn it, is doubtless the merest phin-prick, visible to our eye alone, on the the illimitable sphere of life. It is the limitable sphere of life. It is wise to think and to act as though all that happened to man were all that happened to ma

I am satisfied that the sage might answer, without laying himself open to the charge of indifference or undue resignation. "In what comes fo pass will be happiness." Many things happen that seem unjust to us; but of all the achievements of reason there has been none so helpful as the discovery of the loftler reason that underlies the misdeeds of nature.

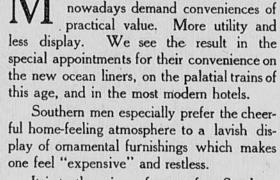

It is from the slow and gradual vindication of the unknown force that we deemed at first to be pitlless, that our moral and physical life has derived its chief prop and support. If a race disappears that conforms with our every ideal, it will be only because our ideal still falls short of the grand ideal, which is, as we have said, the intimate truth of the universe.

EN who travel with their families

It is to the wives of some of our Southern friends that we are indebted for many of the innovations we have introduced at the Martinique which gives to it the freedom of the home.

When you bring your family to the Martinique they are attended by a WILLING and OBLIGING MAID whose chief concern is the contentment of your wife and children.

The Palm Room is a cozy livable place where your wife will feel as comfortable and as INDEPENDENT as though she were in her living room at home.

The Music Room is for the pleasure of your family. A delightful place to sit with them in the evenings and listen to the music.

There are private writing rooms and parlors for ladies, and ALWAYS a MAID in attendance.

The Art of giving a domestic touch to a hotel is difficult to acquire. Many hotels with the best intentions in the world fail because they lack the years of experience and the knowledge which comes from a special study of the needs of women.

When you visit New York this Summer with your family bring them to the Martinique with a feeling of confidence that they will be surrounded with the protection your own fireside affords, and that they will get the solicitous care and attention they should

The rates are so reasonable that a man of moderate means may now enjoy with his family the comforts and conveniences of one of the newest hotels in America without undue expense.

Room with convenient bath $1.50. Rooms with private bath $2.50 to $5.00. Parlor, bed room and bath, $5.00 to $15.00.

Whether you come by rail or by boat we meet you, look after the care and transfer of your baggage without expense or a moment's anxiety to you.

Since schools have closed we are receiving reservations from all sections of the South for July and the early part of August. WRITE TO-DAY tell us the number in your party and when you expect to arrive so you may have your selection of the choice rooms.
